

Buckeye Brief #13

BUCKEYE BUCKS

Ohio State has one of the few completely self-supporting athletics programs in the nation, requiring no tuition or tax dollars. Thanks to income from Buckeye football and basketball, more than 900 student-athletes compete in 36 varsity sports. While many universities have eliminated some men's sports to comply with Title IX requirements, Ohio State has expanded its sports opportunities for women.

In addition, the Department of Athletics also returns millions of dollars annually to the academic side of the university. This past year it pledged $5 million to the reconstruction of the Thompson Memorial Library.

Buckeye bucks boost education.
